After the first big trade show at Stuttgart's new fairground Dr. Mathias Kammüller, Head of the Machine Tool and Power Tool Division, summed up: "The Blechexpo was even better than we expected." As the largest exhibitor TRUMPF could exceed its own goals: from June, 13 to 16 TRUMPF sold twice as many machines as at the Blechexpo show 2005 in Sinsheim, Germany.

On its booth of more than 1,000 square meters, TRUMPF put a focus on services, renamed as TruServices. Via its own leasing company TRUMPF is able to oversee and conduct leasing business like no other machine tool manufacturer in Germany. More than 40 per cent of the machines that were sold to German customers at the Blechexpo are financed by TRUMPF Leasing.

There was a remarkable number of foreign guests among the about 25,000 visitors of the Blechexpo show. TRUMPF received delegations from 15 different countries at the booth. "This is a very positive sign concerning the future development of the Blechexpo and of the very beautiful new fairground close to the Stuttgart airport", said Kammüller.

TRUMPF is a high-tech company focusing on production and medical technology. Further information on the company can be found at www.trumpf.com.
